Yes, please do. I appreciate your attention in this matter. Glad to hear she was better, she was a mess when I dropped her off to band rehearsal. I am well aware that [REDACTED] can be hypersensitive. We are all bullied at some point and we learn to mitigate using our own tactics and strategies. I don't want this to lessen her desire to attend school. Please relay the coping strategies so I can utilize them at home as well.

Thank you

Hi [REDACTED]

I checked- in with [REDACTED] this morning to discuss her rough morning. She was happy and cheerful and said she was feeling much better. We also went over coping strategies that she can utilize when she is having a rough morning.

When bus issues arise Mr. McAtee looks into the issue and communicates with the bus drivers. He is fully aware of this issue and it has been addressed. [REDACTED] no longer sits near [REDACTED] and the information that she did share with me was from a couple weeks ago and not a new issue. Would you like me to forward this email to Mr. McAtee?

Thank you, Ms. Kruse

Hello,

[REDACTED] relayed that she spoke to you. Thank you.

Do you have any feedback from her? She continues to say that this [REDACTED] person is problematic. Is the school a place where the parents can meet as a neutral venue? Do the bus drivers report problems they see on the buses? Are other kids reporting problematic behavior on these buses?

What is the disciplinary process for students found to be in violation of district policy.?

We had a rough morning, [REDACTED] was very upset and didn't want to come to school. We don't want to be holier than thou parents that feel their kids are angels and would like to know if [REDACTED] is contributing passively or aggressively to any issues as well.

I am available to talk or come into the facility at any time on any day.

Respectfully,

[REDACTED]

Hello [REDACTED]

Thank you for bringing this to my attention as this is inappropriate bus behavior and will be addressed ([REDACTED] name will not be brought up). I am meeting with [REDACTED] at 10:05 today and we will discuss this. Thank you and please keep me updated if any other issues arise. Have a wonderful Friday!

Ms. Kruse

Hello,

[REDACTED] has relayed to me that she continues to experience bullying on the bus. [REDACTED] wants everyone to like her so she tends, unfortunately, to give people a pass regarding inappropriate behavior. Two kids ([REDACTED] on her bus (#3) are taking her things and [REDACTED] threw paint on her pants [REDACTED] did not want me to go to McAtee as she doesn't want to be labeled a snitch. I know she is speaking with you and really values your opinion. Perhaps you can discuss this with her.

thanks!
