Dear Customers and Industry Partners:

In preparation for summer peak demands and wildfire season, Western Area Power Administration (WAPA) conducts a situational outlook to forecast and prepare for potential operational disruptions. This letter is to provide you, our customers and partners, with the necessary information about what to expect from WAPA, so you can incorporate awareness of WAPA's actions into your own preparations and response plans.

Major weather and climate events - from heat waves, wildfires, high winds, and tornadoes, to heavy rainstorms, flooding, and long-term drought - have local and region-wide impacts. WAPA constantly manages its bulk electric system operations and its hydropower resources using a variety of tools and data to anticipate and respond to adverse conditions and system constraints. Extreme events can lead to insufficient electricity supplies and emergency situations within Balancing Authority Areas and markets. Our proactive measures prepare us to meet energy demands and respond to Energy Emergency Alerts. As emergency situations arise, WAPA follows established emergency criteria procedures.

Looking at the forecast for summer 2025, here is a summary of WAPA preparations:

Prepared for low runoff, continued drought

WAPA hydropower depends on available water resources at each of the generating dams; this means that, generally, good annual snowpack (spring runoff) and rainfall increase the availability to generate power, serve customer loads and market any excess energy, while dry years with lower snowpack and rainfall mean less hydropower. Adding to the complexity, the nature of a federal multipurpose hydropower system means operations go beyond generating electricity to include other system uses such as flood control and navigation, supplying irrigation water, municipal and industrial water use, environmental requirements, and recreational uses.

A majority of WAPA's river systems are slightly below average in both snowpack and runoff based on early spring hydrological conditions. Specifically, the Missouri and Upper Colorado river basins, and the Central Valley reservoirs are seeing close to average conditions, as of April 1, 2025. Whereas the Lower Colorado River Basin is anticipating its second-worst water year in the past 50 years due to enduring drought.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's (NOAA's) Climate Prediction Center's April forecast predicts below-normal seasonal precipitation between now and

July across most of the western United States, with the driest predictions centered just north of the Four Corners region. However, increased monsoon conditions are very likely across the lower portion of the Southwest region. For WAPA, hydropower generation in 2025 is anticipated to be slightly below normal overall. However, specific resource availability depends upon local conditions, marketing plans and hydropower generator operations.

WAPA continues to prepare for varying generation availability across its service territory to support power customers by:

- Purchase power planning: When hydropower generation is constrained due to variable hydrology or operational constraints, WAPA may purchase power from other suppliers to fulfill its contractual commitments to customers. WAPA recovers these expenses from customers through its rates or direct billing.
- Hydropower generator coordination: Working with our federal hydropower generating agencies to strategically and proactively address experimental and bypass flows, as well as setting release volumes for forecasted generation.
- Customer coordination: WAPA advises utilities to communicate early with their appropriate marketing contacts to ensure protocols are understood and in place. If a utility projects a load/resource imbalance, it should first attempt to resolve the situation through their normal marketing contacts.

Coordinated operations in anticipation of summer heat

The NOAA Climate Prediction Center's April forecast predicts above-normal summer temperatures from now until July for California and the West, with normal temperatures expected in the Great Plains region. Similar to the precipitation outlook, high temperatures are very likely across the Southwest, which likely means above-normal energy use early this summer, extending through July. In 2025, WAPA will apply the following strategies to support electrical system reliability:

- Outage coordination/scheduling: WAPA actively reviews the timing of transmission and generation maintenance outages to reduce conflicts and implements mitigations as needed. Generating agencies have generally scheduled preventative maintenance activities during times of lower demand.
- Maintaining fire-related public safety protocols: WAPA supports industry strategies related to public safety power shutoffs and procedures to reduce potential fire risks from energized bulk electric system equipment. WAPA monitors real-time operations to mitigate the impact of intentional preemptive de-energizations that could impact system reliability.
- Market participation: WAPA and its customers continue participating in several markets: the California Independent System Operator's Western Energy Imbalance Market and Southwest Power Pool's Integrated Marketplace and Western Energy Imbalance Service Market.

Monitoring likely early start to wildfire season

The National Interagency Fire Center's Predictive Services program releases a monthly fire-potential seasonal outlook for the nation's wildlands. Its April prediction indicates normal wildfire conditions across most of WAPA's service territory. The exception is the Southwest region, which may see an early start to large wildland fire season due to variable late winter/spring weather patterns. WAPA is taking the following steps to address conditions:

- Proactive maintenance of infrastructure: WAPA continuously monitors and maintains the health of its transmission system through regular aerial and ground patrols, and infrared/corona inspections with emphasis on managing vegetation on rights of way and near equipment. WAPA also proactively schedules corrective maintenance to ensure the safety and proper operation of equipment.
- Inspecting conditions in high fire-risk locations: WAPA continues to take an integrated approach to vegetation management by adjusting the frequency of vegetation inspections at locations in areas prone to fire risk as conditions change.
- Modeling wildfire activity near energy infrastructure: Using Geographic Information System technology, WAPA models wildfire hazard potential, active fires, and vegetation concerns throughout its service territory, thereby enhancing situational awareness for operations and readiness planning. These real-time tools display facilities within set distances from active fire locations and allow WAPA to prepare as best as possible, working with operations and maintenance staff to effectively mitigate adverse impacts to the transmission system.

WAPA continues to maintain its proven record of delivering reliable, cost-based hydropower to customers by monitoring available hydropower resources and transmission system capacity during routine and emergency operations. WAPA and its customers must remain attentive and be prepared to adjust to changing conditions in real time.

WAPA will consider multiple factors before responding to an emergency, including protecting human health and safety; maintaining system reliability; meeting project uses and preference customer obligations; and working within environmental regulations. These and other factors outside of our control could limit WAPA's ability to support neighboring utilities in an emergency; thus, support is not guaranteed.

Customer utilities are encouraged to prepare for dynamic conditions and follow normal day-ahead and real-time operational procedures to address any anticipated load/resource imbalances. If the local WAPA merchant determines it has surplus power to offer, the excess energy may be made available for purchase.

If you have any questions regarding this letter, please contact me at LeBeau@wapa.gov, or Tina Ko, Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer, at TKo@wapa.gov.

Tracey A. LeBeau

Minimum Weather Requirements for Poured-in-Place Rubber, Bonded Rubber, and Synthetic Turf installation.

- Consecutive weather without any rain and with sustained daytime temperatures of 45 degrees and rising.
- Overnight lows MUST BE above freezing (32 degrees).
- No more than a 20-degree swing between daytime highs and overnight lows throughout the installation.

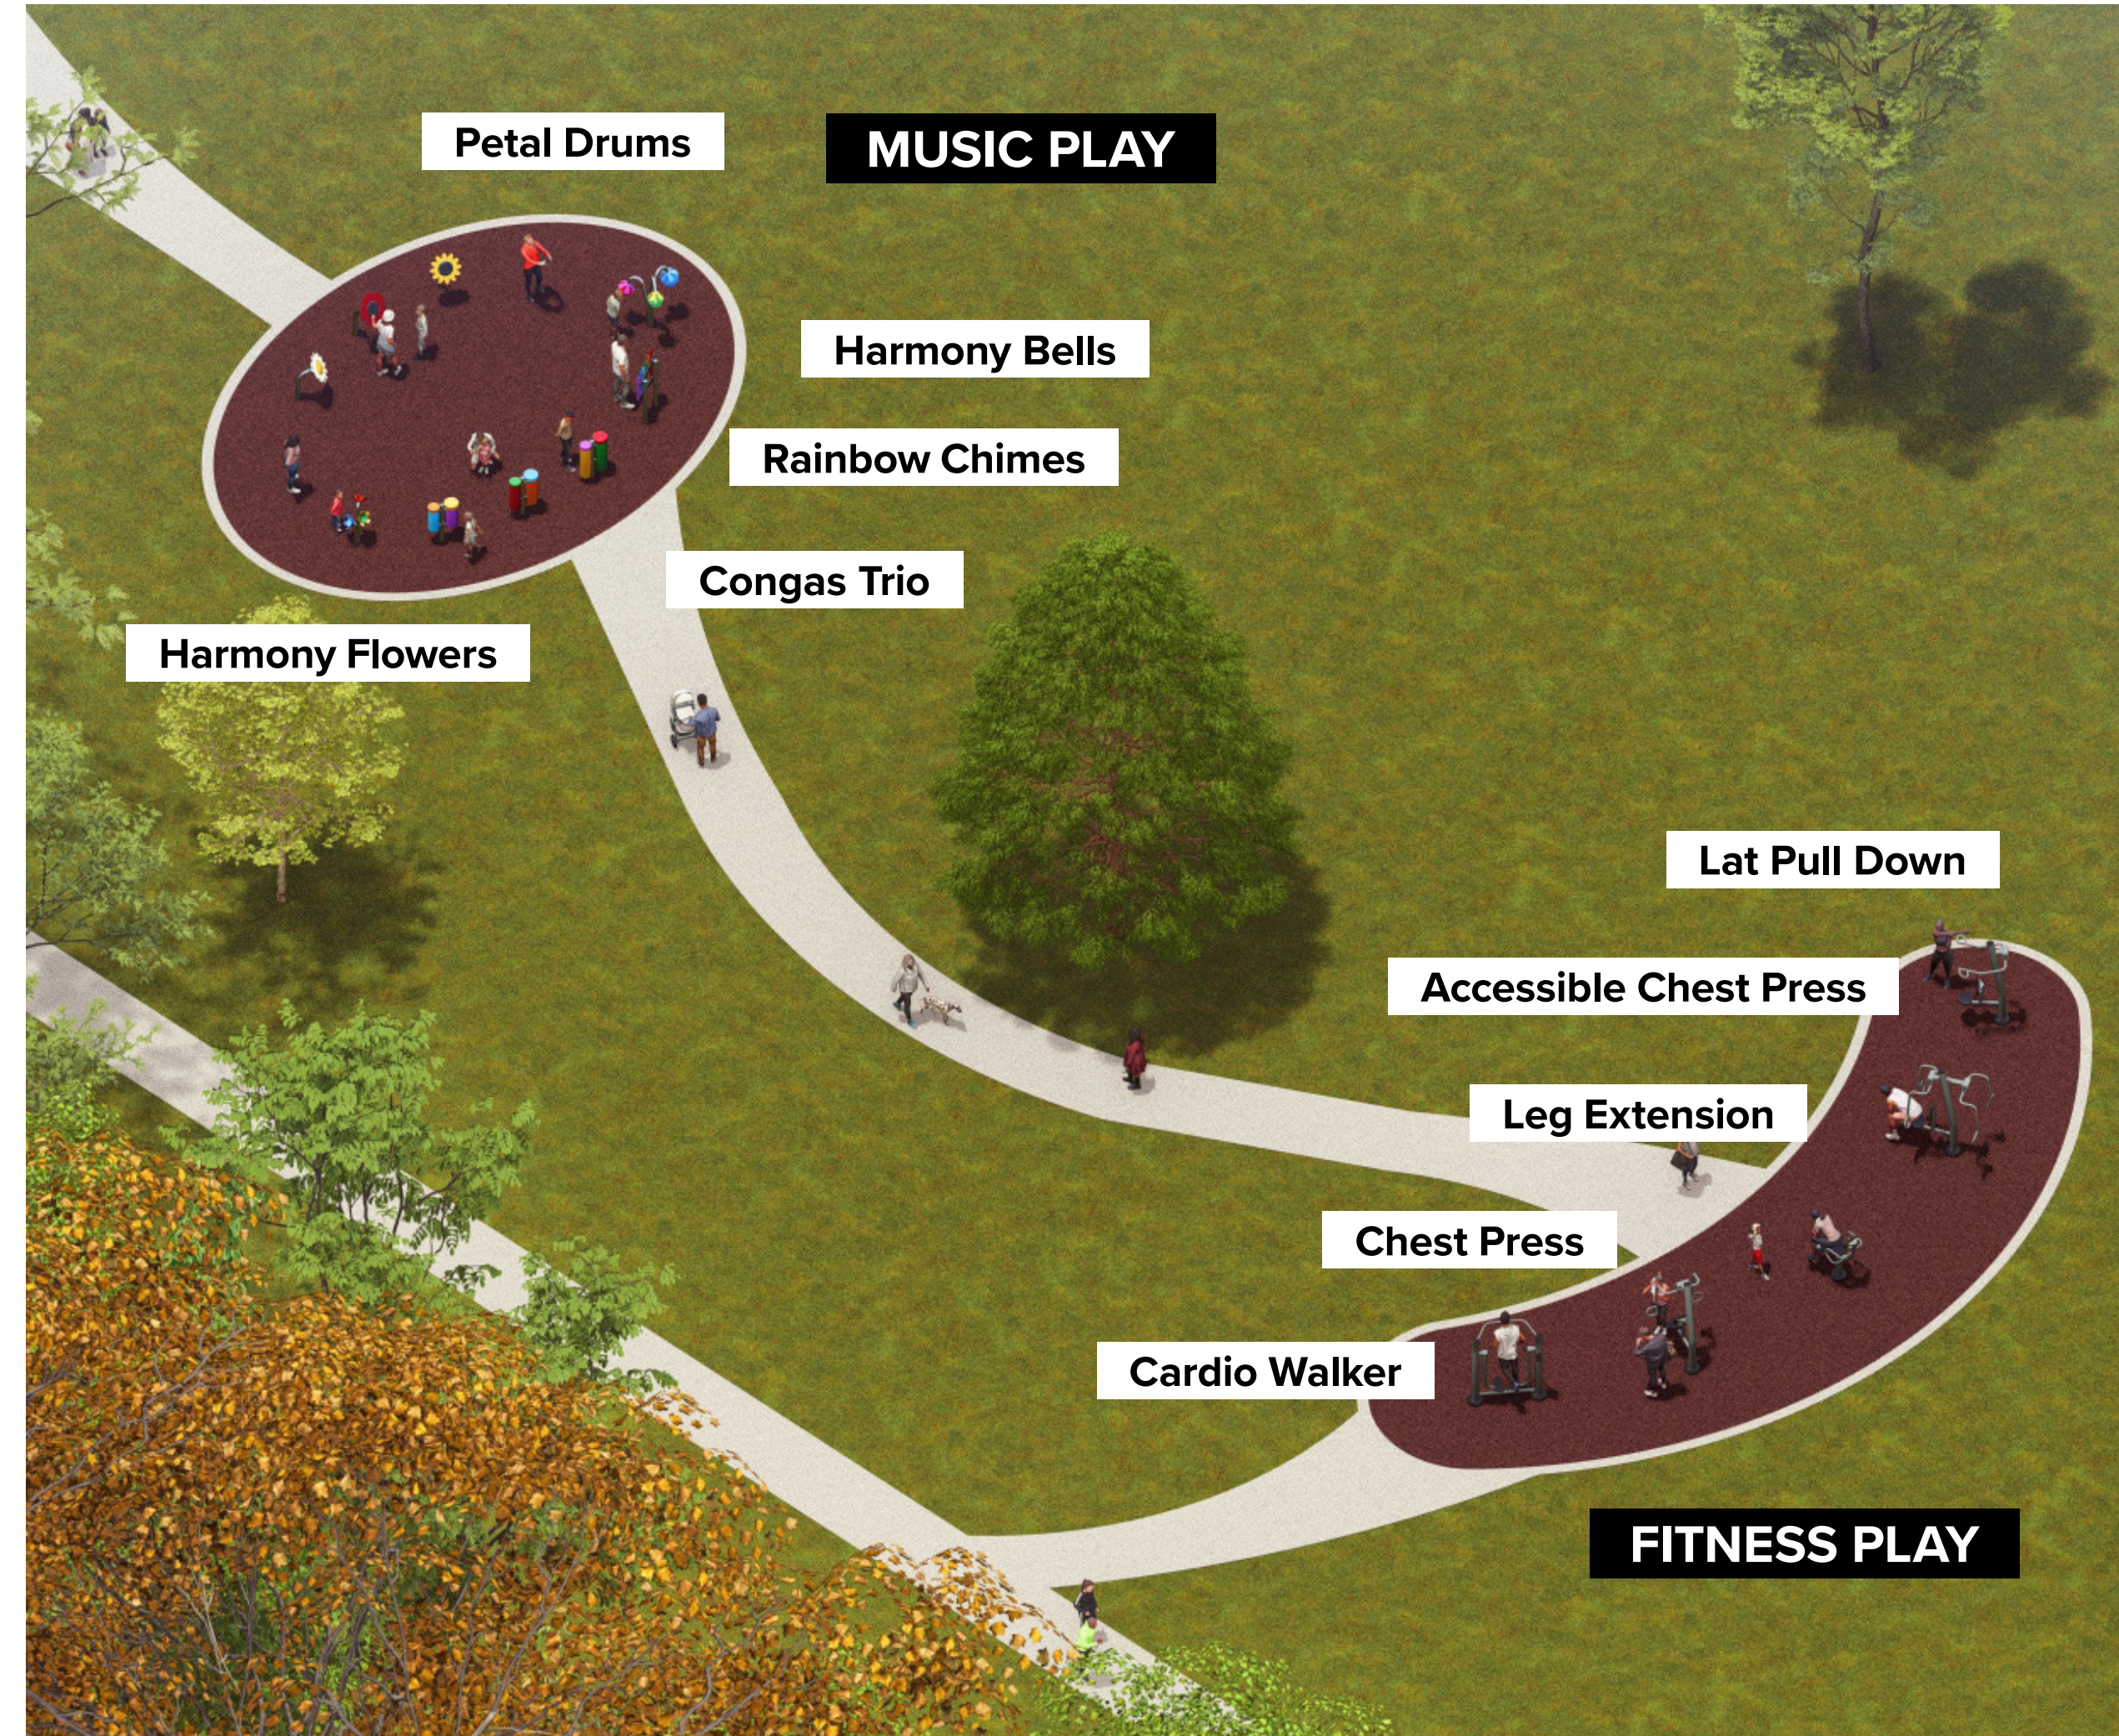

Additional consideration: Installations in cooler temperatures will likely cause the crew to install less square footage per day than typical, which will result in additional cold-joint seams in the topcoat/wear layer of the surfacing system.

INSTALLATION SCHEDULES ARE WEATHER DEPENDANT AND SUBJECT TO CHANGE BASED ON ABOVE, INCLUDING THE POTENTIAL FOR LENGTHY SEASONAL DELAYS.

Subject: Fence Quote for Pickle Ball Courts

Sent: Tue 5/13/2025 3:41 PM GMT-05:00

Importance: Normal

I haven't drawn a proposal but I have worked up some costs.

New fence fabric with 7' tall slats would be $19,500 installed.

7' tall shade tarp would be $8500 installed.

With the slat option we would have to replace the old fence fabric so we could install the new slats. With the shade tarp option we would just add some ties to make sure the existing fence fabric is secure then we would attach the shade tarp.

Let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,

Chris

Re: Public Features in Franklin's Park

Raquel Felzien:

Becoming a community leader takes commitment to finding solutions to the challenges we face in our community. Most small rural communities are faced with economic challenges with little to no means for providing the needed amenities to the community.

In today's fast-paced world, maintaining a healthy lifestyle is paramount. It's no secret that regular exercise plays a crucial role in fostering overall wellness and combating chronic health conditions.

For some or most individuals that live in a rural community there is no access to a gym or other fitness facilities. For most of our community residents staying fit is more than just a desire it is a medical necessity.

This applies to people with specific health issues that require regular physical activity, exercise, or some kind of regime to stay fit.

Many of our senior citizens would like to exercise more but there is no equipment available or walking trails/sidewalks to accommodate a safe exercise regime. In addition, to the equipment it is also healthy for our seniors to get out and move around, be around other people especially if they are recently widowed.

In addition, to the overall health benefits of exercising there is an underlying benefit to all of the local businesses trying to recruit staff, being able to point to local amenities available to all residents of Franklin County is an excellent benefit to be able to offer. The attraction of workers has become a key challenge for all rural communities, there needs to be the same benefits in a rural community that they can find in a much larger community.

As a primary employer to the community of Franklin and the surrounding areas, Franklin County Memorial Hospital realizes just how important it is to our community to have choices for a healthy exercise regime.

Franklin County Memorial Hospital has a vested interest in the City of Franklin receiving grant funding to support and maintain Public Features for our Park. This will provide a healthy alternative for our entire community to take advantage of.

We would be excited to support this program.

2023 RURAL COMMUNITY RECOVERY PROGRAM LETTER OF COMMITMENT

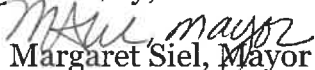

I am writing on behalf of the City of Franklin to express our enthusiastic support for the installation of public features for the City Park renovation project application through the 2023 RCRP program. The City Council unanimously voted on June 11, 2024, to approve and prioritize the Franklin City Park projects for this funding opportunity.

City leaders are willing and able to commit to this project in many ways as we recognize the tremendous increased value this opportunity provides to revitalize our public spaces. All park project zones require some type of demolition and site work, and City staff will be able to make the project zones “pad ready” through site preparation using our equipment and resources when needed. Our #2 zone requires demolition of the old picnic shelter and adjacent bathroom structures to prepare for significant rehabilitation. City staff will remove old cement blocks and transport debris for reuse as riprap shore stabilization around the sewer lagoons. Additionally, the installation of the gaga pit, sunshade seating, coordination and oversight of volunteers for installation of the disc golf course, and installation of court lighting around the pickleball and basketball courts will be completed with dedicated City resources.

The City understands the value of promoting healthier living environments having renovated our old tennis courts into new pickleball and volleyball courts in April 2024, as well as installing sidewalks in the perimeter of City Park enabling easy access. The City’s recent investment of approximately $90,000 for the installation of these public recreation features demonstrates our commitment to improving the quality of life for residents. For the City’s RCRP submission, the City Council voted on July 9, 2024, to commit a cash match of $20,000, in addition to dedicating City staff resources and equipment.

Thank you for considering our application and for the opportunity to participate in this transformative project to revitalize our public spaces. We look forward to the possibility of working together to make this vision a reality to provide enhanced, safe, accessible and engaging public features in our City Park.

Sincerely,

Margaret Siel, Mayor
City of Franklin
